Executive Summary

Philosophy:

The Commission is a dynamic and effective leader in the pursuit of equal justice, and provides an authoritative voice for civil rights. The Commission envisions a Vermont that is knowledgeable about civil rights, whose citizens are empowered in the pursuit of equal access, and where dignity, respect, equality and fairness are afforded to all.

Key Initiatives:

The Vermont Human Rights Commission (VHRC) promotes full civil and human rights in Vermont by enforcing laws, mediating disputes, educating the public, providing information and referrals and advancing effective public policies on human and civil rights. The five Commissioners are appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate for five-year terms with one Commissioner subject to reappointment each year.

The Commission protects people from unlawful discrimination in housing, state government employment, and places of public accommodation such as schools, restaurants, offices or stores that offer facilities, goods or services to the general public.

The Commission conducts impartial investigations into allegations of discrimination and determines whether there are reasonable grounds to believe that unlawful discrimination occurred in a case.

The Commission's staff presently seeks to resolve formal charges through conciliation, and if necessary, formal mediation both before and after conclusion of an investigation. If the Commission finds that there are reasonable grounds to believe there was discrimination in a case and the case cannot be settled, the Commission may file suit in court to obtain remedies for violations of the state's civil rights laws.

In addition to the Commission's enforcement responsibilities, key initiatives include:

- increasing education and outreach to raise the VHRC's public profile and educate the public about civil rights and responsibilities;
- working with the Department of Human Resources (DHR) to offer a course on implicit bias through the new DHR training center;
- increasing access to private and public accommodations with an emphasis on gas stations;
- working to ensure that all students have access to equal discipline and are free from harassment;
- > ensuring housing choice for all;
- ensuring that places of public accommodation refrain from racial profiling.

The HRC Executive Director also supplies information, legal analyses, and advice to the Legislature as well as the Executive and Judiciary upon request.

Funding Levels:

The GF appropriation ($450,152) and the annual grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Fair Housing Office ($66,720) (for use in SFY15) are sufficient to fully fund the Human Rights Commission expenditures for operating and its 5 FTE staff salaries and benefits. Federal funds from HUD decreased again this year (due to fewer complaints being filed). The Commission continues to work hard at increasing the number of cases filed through outreach and training efforts. The Commission feels that pro-active efforts to reduce discrimination are as important as the processing of complaints and continues to work diligently to increase these efforts.

In order to be positioned to continue to serve as a valuable resource to persons who believe they have been subjected to unlawful discrimination, and to provide important education and outreach, the Commission will need to maintain funding at current levels.

Summary

Shifting demographics, including a Vermont population that is becoming increasingly diverse, and multi-cultural, along with an aging population that will result in a higher percentage of citizens with disabilities, will likely increase demands on the Commission's limited resources.

Maintaining the GF appropriation at the present level will position the HRC to meet these evolving needs in the coming years.

VERMONT HUMAN RIGHTS COMMISSION

a. What are your programs?

The Vermont Human Rights Commission (the Commission) is the state agency having jurisdiction over claims of unlawful discrimination in housing, state government employment, and the provision of goods and services by places of public accommodation such as businesses and governmental entities. The Commission has four statutorily mandated roles: enforcement, complaint conciliation, education/outreach, and policy development.

Enforcement. The Commission conducts impartial investigations into allegations of discrimination and determines whether there are reasonable grounds to believe that unlawful discrimination occurred. The Commission's staff seeks to resolve charges through conciliation, and if necessary formal mediation, both before and after a finding of reasonable grounds by its commissioners. If the Commission finds discrimination and the case cannot be settled, the commissioners may direct the Commission's executive director, who acts as legal counsel, to file suit in court.

Education/Outreach. Commission staff engages in public education efforts in both a proactive and reactive manner. Proactively, staff members speak with constituent groups about their rights and responsibilities under anti-discrimination laws. The Commission may also begin providing training to the public and to state personnel on employment discrimination issues and implicit bias at the newly created Department of Human Resources training center. Reactively, the staff provides training at cost to respondents as a term of settlement to prevent the recurrence of discriminatory acts and practices.

Policy Development. The Commission's executive director engages in on-going policy discussions in the Legislative, Executive and Judicial branches to advance effective public policies on human and civil rights and identify the existence of practices of discrimination that detract from the full enjoyment of those rights. The Commission's litigation efforts are designed to establish clear parameters as to both the rights of individuals and the obligations of entities covered by anti-discrimination statutes. In addition, Commission staff are engaged with community organizations seeking to respond to discrimination in Vermont communities.

b. How do these programs meet your core mission?

The Commission's mission is to promote full civil and human rights in Vermont. The Commission protects people from unlawful discrimination in housing, state government employment and public accommodations and pursues its mission by enforcing laws, mediating disputes, educating the public and providing information and referrals as well as advancing effective public policies on human rights issues in Vermont.

Enforcement through either conciliation or litigation, provides remedies for persons aggrieved by violations of the state's civil rights laws, provides a deterrent to those who engage in discrimination and vindicates the public's interest in a society free from discrimination.

Education and Outreach increase the Commission's visibility as a state resource and reduce/deter discrimination by educating people about their rights and responsibilities.

Policy Development promotes diversity and understanding across cultures and creates stronger more vibrant communities.

a. What does success in each program look like to Vermonters both those served by the program and the general population?

Enforcement/Conciliation- Success in Commission enforcement efforts is evidenced by timely, impartial investigations into allegations of discrimination, reasonable settlements or informal resolution of complaints, and when necessary, effective deterrence through changes in programs and policies, training, civil penalties and monetary damages for aggrieved parties.

Education- Success in the provision of training, both proactive and reactive (for respondents) is evidenced by the numbers of people trained who gain a better understanding of their rights and responsibilities as a result.

Policy Development and Implementation- Success is evidenced by changes or improvements to legislation and/or public policy that enhance and protect the civil and human rights of Vermonters.

b. What performance measures are used to determine progress and what baseline data is available (current and proposed budget, # served, etc.)?

Numbers of People Served: During FY2014, the Commission received inquiries about possible discrimination from 963 individuals, an increase of almost 300 contacts. From those calls, a total of 79 charges were accepted; 70 as formal charges and 9 as informal charges. With the exception of the incoming calls, these numbers have remained relatively stable over the past three years. Fifty-six (56) cases were closed during FY14. Staff provided education and outreach to 41 groups or individuals; thirty-one of those were to related to public accommodations, nine were housing and there was one employment seminar. New methods of collecting information will allow the Commission to provide better information for FY2015 concerning the actual numbers of people trained. A bi-annual Fair Housing Newsletter, published by the Commission, is distributed by email to 1500 recipients.

Timely resolution of Complaints: The Commission began tracking this information during FY2015 and will be able to provide better data in 2016. Most housing complaints are resolved within 100 days, a performance measure set by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which provides funding for case involving federally protected categories. The Commission has set a goal of 300 days for resolution of employment and public accommodations cases. Data will be available in FY2015 to better evaluate both the numbers of cases resolved within this time frame and whether the timeframe is realistic or needs to be adjusted to more accurately reflect reality.

Relief Obtained: A total of twelve (12) cases were heard by the Commissioners. In four (4) cases the Commission found reasonable grounds to believe that discrimination occurred. Eight (8) cases resulted in a no reasonable grounds finding. Forty-three (43%) percent of the cases were resolved through pre or post-determination settlements. Charging parties received approximately $345,000 in damages. In addition, most settlements included some public interest relief including training, changes in policies or procedures, or other relief tailored to the individual circumstances. There were no civil penalties awarded by the court during this timeframe.

3. Is there a better way?

The Commission is presently fulfilling its mission in an effective and efficient manner but continues to review and adjust its staffing and procedures to improve intake and complaint processing. The VHRC is in the process of educating itself about restorative justice principles and programs in an effort to determine whether this process could provide an additional means of conciliating formal and informal complaints as well as potentially addressing larger community disputes or issues involving civil rights. Restorative justice conferences are currently in use at the Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission and have proven successful in bringing parties to resolutions that meet their needs. On the education side, VHRC will be cooperating with the Department of Human Resources (DHR) to develop and present trainings on employment discrimination, accessibility and implicit bias. Fair housing training will also continue. Hopefully, these efforts will reduce the number of informal and formal complaints filed with the agency. Further outreach is needed to educate the public about the services offered and provided by the VHRC. To do this, the executive director will be identifying agencies, businesses, and other entities in each county in a dual effort to educate about what the VHRC does and develop on-going partnerships/relationships for referrals for both training and complaints.

Mission Statement

The mission of the Human Rights Commission ("Commission" or "VHRC") is to promote full civil and human rights in Vermont. The Commission protects people from unlawful discrimination in housing, state government employment and public accommodations such as schools, restaurants, offices or stores that offer facilities, goods or services to the general public and pursues its mission by enforcing laws, mediating disputes, educating the public, and providing information and referrals.

Goals:

The Commission works to ensure that:

- Cases and inquiries are responded to and resolved in a timely manner that provides people with meaningful results;
- > Actions taken by the VHRC are fair, consistent and impartial;
- > The public is educated about civil and human rights;
- > Communities promote equality, fairness, understanding and acceptance of all;
- > Individuals and institutions act effectively to end discrimination;
- > The dignity of each individual and the differences among all people are respected;
- Knowledgeable employees work to serve the public's interest in promoting equal opportunity for all Vermonters and visitors and provide the highest quality of customer service to the public.

As a dynamic leader in the pursuit of social justice, the Commission will continue to:

- > Collaborate with public, private, and non-profit organizations;
- > Conduct efficient and effective enforcement of civil rights;
- > Educate the public about the Commission's role and mission in enforcing civil and human rights;
- > Provide an authoritative voice with respect to civil rights in Vermont.

Market:

The Commission, with its small staff of 5 FTE employees, has responsibility for providing services to all citizens of the state and to all visitors in protected categories. During FY2014, the Commission received 963 inquiries and investigated 70 formal and 9 informal complaints from a wide range of persons who believed that they were victims of discrimination. The Commission provides pre and post conciliation/mediation services and may file suit to obtain remedies for aggrieved individuals and relief designed to further the public interest in cases where there is a finding of reasonable grounds and the case cannot be settled. HRC staff speaks with individuals and groups about their rights and responsibilities under civil rights laws, works with individuals, agencies, and groups to combat bias and bigotry, and supplies information, legal analyses, and advice to the Legislature as well as the Executive and Judicial branches of state government.

Resources:

The demands on the Commission have increased in the past year. It received almost 300 more calls in FY2014 and the demand will likely continue to increase as Vermont becomes a more diverse and multi-cultural place, the population continues to age and the social service safety net continues to fray. The Commission has reached a point where it cannot continue to fulfill its mission if its appropriation is cut further. The Governor's recommended budget for FY2016 of $450,152 will cover fixed operating costs and the salaries and benefits for the Commission's five FTE staff members but the very small amount of discretionary funding in the budget has been reduced to a point where any further cuts will result in a reduction of its already small staff. The GF increases over the past several years had insulated the Commission from the up and down nature of the funding from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). This funding is dependent on the number of formal housing intakes received. The only option for further reducing general funds, beyond cutting staff, is to virtually eliminate the amount of education and outreach that investigators and the executive director are currently conducting. This is counter-productive to increasing the amount of federal funding for housing complaints (by getting the word out to potential victims), but more importantly, it interferes with affirmative efforts to reduce discrimination in the state as a whole. In order for the Commission to continue to be effective and serve as valuable resource to persons who believe they have been victims of unlawful discrimination, it must have sufficient resources to be able to fulfill all of the components of its statutory responsibilities.

The HRC has an agreement with HUD to investigate housing discrimination complaints that allege violations of both state and federal fair housing law. HUD awarded the Commission $73,304 for use in SFY2014 (a decrease of approximately $10,000) and the amount awarded for FFY2014/SFY2015 has been further reduced to $66,720. The amount is based on the number of housing complaints closed in the preceding FFY year. The Commission has no control over how many complaints are filed but could potentially increase the number through affirmative outreach to protected groups who may be unaware of the Commission's services.

Potential Programmatic Changes:

Implicit Bias: In light of the national attention caused by multiple deaths of young Black men, the Commission has designed a course to examine and discuss implicit bias in the broader community. The Commission will likely be participating in providing this course (and potentially others) at the new training center operated by the Department of Human Resources (DHR). It also hopes to provide this training to the broader Vermont community including state agencies, landlords, municipal government, and other places of public accommodation. The extent to which the Commission will be able to provide this valuable training will depend on maintaining existing staff.

Restorative Justice: The Commission is exploring the feasibility of establishing a restorative justice component to deal informally (albeit through a structured process), with some individual complaints as well as to be a forum of resolution for broader community civil rights issues. The Human Rights Commission in Nova Scotia has a successful program that may be able to be adapted in Vermont.

School Issues: The Commission continues to receive numerous requests from Vermont educators for training on preventing and responding to incidents of harassment and bullying of students. Due to the loss of a longterm staff member, who was conducting most of these trainings, the Commission is unable to provide this important resource with current staff and funding. The Commission continues to work with education partners to identify alternatives. The Commission continues to work on school climate issues including participating in a coalition that is examining unequal school discipline for students with disabilities and students of color.

Capital Needs for the Program:

The Commission has no capital needs for FY 2016.
